Toy Trains Athearn: From One Innovation To Another

Toy trains Athearn has been providing a wide range of top-quality trains to kids and serious hobbyists alike for more than 60 years. By delivering toy trains with excellently detailed features, Athearn has become well-known in providing superior quality at an affordable price. They are also designed for rugged reliability and quality, making them ideal as a first set to start a kid on his toy train collection.

Toy trains Athearn are made up of components that can last many years and may even be operating good enough to be part of any future toy railway expansions. These toy trains are manufactured and distributed by the company Athearn, which is one of the leading providers of model railroad equipment in the United States.

When satisfied consumers think of toy trains Athearn, they think of superior quality and dependability. They are continually thinking of innovations in both quality and workmanship to produce and offer their consumers for a more worthwhile experience with toy train collections. They introduced a reefer kit which eventually became the precursor to the Ready To Roll line.

When Athearn acquired the Globe models product line, they immediately made improvements on it to come up with a comprehensive line of locomotive, passenger and freight car models, including their well-known innovation called the "Hi-F" drive mechanism. This mechanism makes use of small rubber bands to transfer motion to the wheels from the motor spindle. They also came up with the double-ended ring magnet motor providing for easier connection between stocks. Aside from these, Athearn also soon incorporated flywheels into their double-ended drives.

Toy trains Athearn are known to last for years with proper handling and care. In fact, many adult hobbyists today who have found better deals, or have fallen out of love for collecting toy or model trains are putting up their athearn models which could be as old as 30 years for online auctions. The pictures show that these trains which have outlived many hobbyists' childhood years are still in perfect shape.

Toy trains athearn may come in both HO and N scales. The innovative company that produces them traces its humble beginnings to the efforts of Irvin Athearn to sell an elaborate O scale model he built in his mother's house. This led him to realize that selling model railroads was his calling, and model train enthusiasts who are always looking for new innovations to add to their collections are all the better for it.
